Dharma Pendant

Unless joined, Yin and Yang will never a full circle make. Designer Edmondo Testaguzza sought this level of wholeness when he imagined “several flames in one-embrace,” then used the premise to envelope light with angular concrete. The exterior of the resulting Dharma pendant has a slightly distressed feel while the fixture’s interior is fitted with a nickel-plated metal band that brings the emitted light more reflective power. This makes Testaguzza’s mantra “Dharma is the path” a beautifully illuminated placid one.
